We realise this may come as a surprise, but St Mary's Church has asked us if we would run the Christmas Tree Festival again this year. Initially we are ascertaining whether the number of people willing to participate would make the whole thing viable before can proceed with any other plans. Obviously the festival would be different- a few ideas are that the number of entries would be lower, public entry would be by ticket (children free) and donations would be split equally between all the charities. There would be extended times for putting up and taking down of the trees. If you feel you would like to participate again then please could you let us know asap. We welcome your thoughts and ideas and any views (for or against) as to whether you think the event could proceed.

It would be a sparkly event for the town at this difficult time but is not without its own difficulties. Thanks in anticipation, Marie and David
